

POMLIF: Journal of Library and Information Science
(Volume 1, Number 1, 2018)

Editorial

The use of social media has helped to transform library service delivery as a number of studies have reported. Librarians and other professionals in the information world have continued to appreciate the importance of social media virtually in all things they do. Several studies have however revealed that libraries which use social media effectively in the provision of services, their patrons stand a better chance of winning the heart of their patrons.

Realizing the importance of social media in service delivery in libraries this volume of our journal (POMLIF: journal of libraries and information science, volume 2) has harvested fourteen different chapters to include some works on social media. Such works include consortia resource sharing, availability and use of institutional repositories. Undergraduate students' perception towards entrepreneur education, benefits of resource sharing. The place of social media networks, Resource sharing in academic libraries, Nigeria change agenda through access to information, awareness of and attitude to open access publishing, Use of internet by students and research scholars, Library and the use of social media as indispensable tool for resource sharing and information needs and information seeking behavior of students.

Finally, my profound gratitude goes to our contributors for their contribution in making the volume two of our journal come out. Looking forward to future patronage.
